

DEPUTY AVIATION DIRECTOR – OPERATIONS

City of Phoenix

SALARY $73,694 - $116,085 annualized. Appointment can be made above the minimum depending upon qualifications.

EXPERIENCE Minimum of five years progressively responsible experience in airport operations including three years supervising professional staff, and a bachelor's degree in aviation, public administration, business or a related field. Successful candidates will be team players who possess excellent oral and written communication skills and strong leadership characteristics. Knowledge of federal, state and local regulations pertaining to airport management and operations is preferred. AAE certification is also desirable.

DUTIES The City of Phoenix Aviation Department (Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport) seeks a dynamic and results-oriented professional to oversee the Operations Division. Responsibilities include management of Airside Operation involving Airport Certification Program part 139; Landside Operations which includes curb management, traffic enforcement, and Ground Transportation operations; maintaining the Security program and compliance with FAR 1542; and Parking operations. This position will also coordinate operational aspects of the Automated People Mover and ground transportation planning efforts to ensure safe, secure, and efficient systems are developed.

This position exercises considerable initiative and independent judgment and works under the general supervision of an Assistant Aviation Director. Incumbents in this position are expected to resolve problems of a professional and technical nature and must effectively confront problems facing airport management while managing competing priorities. Currently there is one vacancy in the Aviation Department.

APPLY Apply on-line at www.phoenix.gov/jobs or submit your resume, cover letter, and data collection form to the City of Phoenix Application Office at 135 N. 2nd Ave., Phoenix, AZ 85003. The recruitment may close without notice when a sufficient number of applications have been received or the position has been filled.