

Continuing Education Opportunities

Did you know that ACI-NA can help you achieve your professional development goals to meet your organization's requirements or professional continuing educational credits?

When you attend ACI-NA conferences and seminars to expand your current knowledge and to keep you up to date with the latest developments in the industry you can also earn continuing education credits.

ACI-NA offers over 20 educational conferences and events each year including one of the largest aviation trade shows in the industry.

Today, continuous learning and education is required to stay competitive in industry and job markets, keep abreast of new developments in your field, enhance your personal knowledge and skills, and to serve your airports most effectively.

ACI-NA training opportunities (or conferences and events) allow you the opportunity to obtain continuing education credits (CEU's) for a variety of designations and professional certification including CLE, AICP, CPE and the A.A.E designations.

International Airport Professional (IAP) Designation

ACI has made it even easier for you to obtain the IAP designation. Industry professionals who have obtained their A.A.E designation will earn 2 of the 6 elective courses towards the IAP designation. Learn more

How to Receive CEUs

ACI-NA has developed a process that allows you to meet your professional development goals in 4 easy steps:

- Sign the daily sign in sheet for an event
- Request a certificate of attendance following the event
- Download the handouts and agenda from our website
- Submit the information to your certifying organization

*The number of credit hours that can be earned vary with each event and not all events qualify for CEU hours. You are encouraged to review the conference information before registering. Failure to obtain CE credit is not a valid reason for a refund.
